Chamber President Ramon Ojeda and incoming Board Chair Yasmin Tirardo-Chiodini were among more than 100 Seminole County leaders who gathered January 29th to talk about the county's future. At the Vision IV conference organized by Envision Seminole, leaders in several fields from business to education worked in groups to brainstorm how the county can establish a new agenda in today's economy.

The leaders determined the top priorities by vote. The priorities included: renewing the penny sales tax, consolidation of services and fostering collaboration, and youth crime prevention.
